

Douglas Dynamics Receives 2019 Supply Chain Risk Management Program of the Year Award

November 11, 2019

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 11, 2019 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Douglas Dynamics, Inc. (NYSE: PLOW), North America's premier manufacturer and upfitter of work truck attachments and equipment, today announced it is a winner of the 2019 Supply Chain Risk Management Program of the Year Award.

Douglas Dynamics received this recognition at the riskmethods Supply Chain Risk Management Summit in Boston. The award recognizes organizations who exhibit outstanding approaches to supporting their companies' efforts in creating compliant and sustainable supply chains.

"This award is a testament to our dedication to our suppliers, who we truly collaborate and partner with to help manage risk," said Jim Klotz, Senior Vice President of Global Sourcing and Supply at Douglas Dynamics. "With the global business environment constantly evolving, supply chain risk management is increasingly complex. Monitoring for risk is more important than ever and vital to our overall success. We are pleased our accomplishments have been recognized by the team at riskmethods."

"We are humbled to receive this accolade, which highlights the great work that Jim Klotz and everyone involved with our Global Sourcing and DDMS programs does every day," explained Bob McCormick, President and CEO. "At Douglas Dynamics, we understand the importance of implementing diligent risk prevention measures and the potential long-term benefits that can yield, such as margin improvements that we are able to share with our suppliers. We will continue to efficiently allocate resources to ensure that our organization remains a leader in supply chain risk management for years to come."
